Corruption is a form of dishonesty or a criminal offense which is undertaken by a person or an organization which is entrusted with a position of authority, in order to acquire illicit benefits or abuse power for one's personal gain. Corruption may involve many activities which include bribery and embezzlement, and it may also involve practices which are legal in many countries. Therefore, as this example shows, an integrity judgment always raises the moral dimension, the question of what is considered right and wrong. Yet this moral dimension must go further than the minister's own moral values and norms. Individual perceptions of integrity often are limited to assessing behavior in terms of one's personal values.
